TELEGRAPH NEWS.

One case of yellow fever has occurred in New York.

The West Philadelphia arrived at New York yesterday with $537,000 in specie.

It is feared the steamer Ishmalia, overdue at Glasgow from New York, has become disabled.

A special dispatch from Paris states that it is practically settled that the Assembly is to meet October 29th, and a motion for the restoration of monarchy will be made by November 5.

Mr. Sherwin, of the Vienna Syndicate notoriously arrested on Saturday evening for alleged complicity in the Phelps defalcation, being unable to furnish bail, was locked-up in Ludlow street jail.

Eight hundred and fifty-five thousand dollars coined in twenty dollar gold pieces, was delivered yesterday to Superintendent Pollock, at the Philadelphia mint. The gold weighed over a ton and a half.

After recess in the Tichborne case, yesterday, a note was received from Dr. Kenealy, stating that, owing to illness, he could not again appear in the case to-day, and expressing the hope that he would be able to rest the case for the defense to-morrow.

One of the prominent features of the recommendations which will be made in the report of the Treasurer of the United States will be in favor of issuing a series of currency bonds, convertible into greenbacks and back again into currency, at the option of the holder.

Mr. Reid, United States Consul at Aunde, reports that Bryhu, Booth and Mauch, of the Polaris, had reached his consulate, and would leave on Friday for the United States.
Dr. Russell remains in Washington until the new chart of the Polaris ocean space be completed, and will temporarily be attached to the Smithsonian Institute.

The New York Times publishes a report to the effect that the Union Trust Company received two million and a half dollars worth of Lake Shore stock on February last, to negotiate; that recently the company paid over on account of this stock $1,750,000, and that there is, therefore, a deficiency of $500,000 to account for.

The Pacific Mail and ex-President Stockwell have come to an understanding, by which the latter retires, apparently heavily in debt. The $840,000 mortgage on the Howe Sewing Machine Company, accepted as collateral, he could not meet. He guarantees, however, to pay some English money shares of Pacific Mail, in monthly installments, as a release for his obligations to the company.

A telegram received last night by the Secretary of the Ohio Republican State Central Committee, from Ottawa county states that a return of that county, and that the 771 votes reported as cast for Welsh, for Attorney General, were really cast for him as Treasurer, and those reported cast for Little for Treasurer were really cast for him for Attorney General. This changes the complexion of the State ticket, and probably elects both Welsh and Little, Democrats.

The Grand Jury of the Dakota Territorial District Court, returned an indictment yesterday forenoon against P. H. Wintermute for the murder of Secretary McCook, charging him with manslaughter only. The friends of General McCook are very indignant, and do not hesitate to declare that a number of the Grand Jury have been corruptly influenced, as it is understood that Wintermute has been using money freely wherever it would do the most good.

W. F. G. Shanks, city editor of the Tribune, was yesterday committed to the Brooklyn city jail, by Judge Gilbert, for contempt in refusing to disclose the name of the writer of an article in a recent issue of that paper, reflecting severely upon Judge McCune, of Brooklyn. Information is desired in order to prosecute the writer for libel. Shanks declared that the name of Whitelaw Reid was responsible editor, but declared that the regulations of the office and his duty to his employer forbid his naming the writers of particular articles.

John Bright made a speech to an immense crowd yesterday, during which he referred to the relations between Great Britain and the United States. Some Englishmen, who spoke of the treaty of Washington an humiliation to Great Britain. The humiliation was between 1861 and 1865. If at that time the British Government had practiced toward the United States a generous neutrality, the weathered classes of England would not, in the main, have sided with the insurrection-ary, slave holding planters. If the newspapers here had then dealt in a spirit of fairness with our trans-Atlantic kinsmen, the dispute settled by the treaty of 1872 would not have arisen. The treaty of 1872 would not have arisen in reference to that treaty, and subsequent arbitration under its provisions had added a nobler page to the history of England than had all the bloody battles recorded in its history.

The National Board of Trade, in session at Chicago, tabled resolutions favoring protection to shipping, and passed a recommendation on the National bankruptcy law, containing the following suggestions: Abolition of fees, and the establishment of salaries for officers; enlarging the powers of assignees; authorizing creditors to choose a committee of their own number to settle accounts and make distributions; that the Federal government fix the amount and kind of property exempt from assignment, not subject to change by States. The report of President Frailay was submitted, favoring the government establishing a Department of Commerce, submitted with a proposed act of Congress, establishing and defining the powers, etc., giving this executive department supervision and care of agricultural, commercial, manufacturing and mining interests under government regulations. The report was accepted, and the President explained the details of its provisions. The report was referred back, approved, to the Executive Council, with instructions to urge on Congress the establishment of the department.

Law is strangely uncertain. A Yankton Grand Jury has returned an indictment against Wintermute, the murderer of General McCook, for manslaughter. Well, New York is not the only place where money can paralyze law. If there was ever a deliberate, malicious murder committed from Cain to Lynn, it was the killing of McCook.

Mr. SHANKS, city editor of the New York Tribune, has been put in jail for contempt of Court in refusing to give the name of the writer of an article reflecting on a Brooklyn Judge. The name was wanted to make the basis of a libel suit. Mr. Shanks would not reveal it because the disclosure was in violation of the rules of the office, but he said Mr. Whitelaw Reid was "responsible." Why is not that enough?
What matters it who does the writing so long as there is a man, known to the public, who is responsible for it?
There is not a paper of any value in this land, or any land, that don't contain "editorial" matter which the editor didn't write. But he makes it his by approval and insertion. Why, we ask again, is not that enough?

The St. Louis Democrat says of Michael Angelo: "His wonderful statue of Moses is probably the best impersonation of character ever conceived by an artist." In stone it is. But any one who has seen Guido's Isaiah will be disinclined to admit its universal superiority. That painting, which a few years ago was in consequence of copying in mosaic in the Vatican works, for St. Peter's—where no combustibles are admitted in pictures or any other form—is a startling embodiment of the "rapt" expression of a seer in the "sacred frenzy" of inspiration. The Moses, in the church of "San Pietro in Vinculis" (St. Peter in chains,) is a grand work, but half of those who see it remember it more clearly for the well known "horns," slightly separated at the edge of the forehead, than for its wonderful expression of force, dignity and purity. It is a seated statue, of more than "heroic"—probably it is colossal—size.

THERE is a mighty funny bit of fool language in the condition of the guaranty bonds of the Exposition. Read the last clause: "So much of said note or obligation "only shall be due and payable, on a pro-rata assessment on each note, to make up "any deficit which may exist in the expenses "of the year." A "deficit in expenses" is a new sort of short coming. The "deficit" is pretty invariably in the receipts, and when it occurs in "expenses" is apt to be called a "surplus" and crowded over instead of complained about. A lack of expense is not the trouble with the State Board and the guarantors. A provision for "any deficit which may exist in the expenses of "the year," is a settler of the question as to the liability of the guarantors for any debts incurred by the State Board during the year. All through the bond the Fair and the Exposition are spoken of as parts of the same scheme; their receipts are treated as a common fund; their expenses set to one account; and the Board is allowed to return the guaranty money at its pleasure, without interest, and remain full owner of the Exposition building and all its adjuncts. This would be decisive, it seems to us, but the stipulation that the guaran-tors shall make good any deficit in the income of "the year" is fatal. We don't see how it can be dodged. It is expressed in unmeaning language, to be sure, which says exactly the contrary of what it means, but the purpose is clear, and the Courts will give effect to it. It is true that the guarantors never contemplated being forced to pay the expenses of the State Fair, and the State Board, and the whole State Agricultural Department, for "the year" 1873, and were made to believe, or allowed to believe, that their contribution would be applied exclusively to the local exhibition. But the bond is plain. It binds the obligors to something they never intended or understood to be possible, but it binds them fast enough, for all that, so far as we can see. The action of their meeting last night seems to imply an admission that they are pretty effectually "pinned," and it certainly was the wisest possible under the circumstances. It looks to a compromise of the difficulty, and we believe one can be made.

STOKES AND NEW YORK VIRTUE.

The tendency of the evidence in the trial of Stokes, now in progress, is to acquittal. At least it is against conviction for any offense higher than manslaughter.
We suspect that he will escape, and retrieve his fortune by lecturing. A good many fools will pay a half dollar to see the paramour of a strumpet who has experienced the rare vicissitudes of hanging a jury once, of being condemned to be hung once, and escaping without punishment at last. There is a singular feature about this evidence. Most of it appears to be new. The witnesses, if they appeared in former trials, certainly have improved their testimony, or the reports give it more prominence. We remember no such accumulation of stories of threats made by Fisk against the life of Stokes as appears in the dispatches published yesterday. To us this is a revelation, either of suppressed evidence or of purchased evidence. It may be either, but it may far more easily be the latter, in New York. The lawyers of that city are not above suborning evidence—they have done it often; and the courts of that city are not above admitting it when confident of its purchase and perjury—they have done it often. But so much of it goes generally to show, that Stokes had reason, if he knew of the threats, as is probable—there always being, as Sir Fretful Plagiary says, "some good-natured fellow to tell" anything that will make somebody else miserable—to fear for his life at the hands of the audacious and unscrupulous robber of the Erie road, that it may well create a doubt whether some of it may not be genuine, and if it is, it will make "reasonable doubt" enough for acquittal of a capital crime. We expect an entire acquittal.
The virtuous spasm that quivered the nerves of society and the press a year ago is over, and the city has fallen nearly or quite into its normal subjection to mean influences, dishonest government and corrupt courts. Honesty is only possible there by jerks, and under the stimulus of some moral application that operates like epilepsy, creates a convulsive strength and a long prostration. As Tom Moore says, it is

"—Like a day at the poles,
"A light amid darkness too brilliant to stay." It comes as rarely as ghosts, and acts about as healthfully. In fact, it is the ghost, the unsubstantial vision, of past substance. It is like Banquo's ghost to Macbeth, it produces more horror than penitence. Our own city is fast fitting itself for the same sort of visitations. It had better stop.

FADING FOOLERY.

The completeness with which old and senseless religious prejudices have disappeared from enlightened communities, is attested by the statement published yesterday, that a man who stole the contribution box of Durham Cathedral, in England, was tried and convicted only of a venial larceny. The "sacrilage" that Protestants and Catholics, both, would have made of it a century ago, and the latter, with not a few of the former, would make of it now if they could, is gone. The sin is no longer offense cognizable by law. Why should it be? If it happens to be a violation of human law let it be punished as such, and leave to Heaven the punishment of the offense against Heaven. Human courts have no business with sins. They deal only with crimes, which are not always sins; with human evidence, which is not always true; through tribunals which are not always just, and by processes which are not quite infallible. Heaven deals with no such offenses, by no such instrumentalities. So it needs to be left to look after its own interests, and we may hardly suppose that Omnipotence can't take care of itself. The obtrusion of civil law into religious matters in any form, by punishment of offenses wholly moral, as sacrilege, Sabbath-breaking, and the like, implies that the Almighty needs the help of courts and constables to rule the world and the people He has made. It is not altogether an adoring, hardly a respectful, reflection.
Except for the very remotely possible moral impression made by the invocation of God in the formal oath of our law, it had better be omitted. It is a relic of the senseless bigotry which made mortal judgment the censor of sin. It is far oftener blasphemous than impressive. It is, so far as the appeal to God is concerned, the emptiest, deadest form in the whole ritual of folly.
The effective part of the oath is the human penalty for perjury. The Quaker "affirmation" is the right and reasonable form of legal "swearing." The separation of religion from law and civil support can not be made too wide or too soon. But it is far from being complete every where even in these United States, as witness the following Boston item: "On Sunday Chas. Sheron and Henry Crowell were arrested for sin-fully beguiling the hours with cards, at "their boarding-house, instead of attending "church." At Newburyport, same State, "a man was arrested for playing a game of ball on Sunday. The victims in either case were certainly doing rather worse than nothing. But playing cards on Sunday is no worse than any other idling on Sunday, and no worse than on any other day. And looking at a game of ball played by others is certainly a very innocent way of loafing.
The inflictions for both offenses were assumptions by the civil authorities that God would not do full justice to the sin, for no possible offense against civil order or right could be committed by looking at others, or indulging in a trifling game in privacy at home. Neither would have been punished on any other day. Therefore it was the iniquity, not the misdemeanor, that was punished, and such a punishment means nothing else than that the Almighty can't get along with His moral government and system of redemption without the help of Massachusetts police courts. We don't believe it.

Jack and Schonchin Decapitated.

Cor. San Francisco Chronicle.
Your correspondent, a short time before the execution, desirous of ascertaining the design of the wall-tent already alluded to, obtained a passing glance of its interior.
He saw within a long table, similar to those used in the dissecting-room of a medical college. A black water-proof, India-rubber blanket was spread thereon. A barrel of water was in one corner. In another was a case of surgical instruments and apparatus necessary for some anatomical dissection.
He subsequently ascertained that the heads of Capt. Jack and Schonchin were removed from their trunks and placed in alcohol for transmission to the medical museum in Washington. Language cannot be found severe enough to denounce this act. It cannot be too strongly condemned. It is the order of Gen. Wheaton or any officer at Fort Klamath. It is said to have emanated from headquarters at Washington, and could only have been issued to gratify the purient curiosity of the Moguls at the nation's capital. The Moguls tortured our wounded and mutilated our dead. Where is our boasted civilization, when, after dealing our strict justice to the captives, we shamefully mutilated their remains? This is vengeance indeed, when the great government of the United States stoops down to cut off the head of a savage chief who had warred against it, and who had successfully battled against its power for months. As an American citizen, your correspondent would gladly support this hideous fact. Civilization throughout the globe will blush at the act.
The warrior chief, in his dying speech, said that he would like to meet the great white chief in Washington face to face. The Government evidently intends that his dying wish shall be respected. The decapitation of Capt. Jack's head is a reproach to the nation and the foulest blot on the page which records the history of the Modoc war.

A Nocturnal Ring.

Governor Moses, of South Carolina, has hit on a novel dodge for raising the wind. He proposes to issue $1,000,000 in bills receivable, nominally for the relief of the people of South Carolina, but really to serve the purpose of the ring of which he is a bright and shining light. The State Treasury is already $500,000 short of funds to meet the appropriations made at the last session of the Legislature, and yet no interest has been paid on any portion of the public debt. The new bonds of the State are said to be worth only ten cents on the dollar.

Old Time And I.

BY MARK LEMOS.

Old Time and I the other night Had a carouse together;
The wine was golden, warm and bright—As 'twere like summer weather.
Quoth I: "There's Christmas come again; And I no farther richer."
Time answered: "Ah! the old, old strain—I prythee pass the pitcher."
"Why measure all your good in gold?
No rope of sand is weaker:
'Tis hard to get, 'tis hard to hold—Come, lad, fill up your beaker.
Best thou not found true friends more true, And loving ones more loving?"
I could but say: "A few—a few;
No keep the liquor flowing."
"Hast thou not seen the prosperous knave Come down a precious thimble—His cheeks disclosed?—'I have—I have!'"
"Well, surely that's a bummer."
"Nay, hold awhile; I've seen the just Find all their hopes grow dimmer."
"They will hope on, and strive, and trust, And conquer!" "That's a brimmer."
"Tis not because to-day is dark—No brighter day's before me!
There's rest for every storm-tossed bark."
"So be it! Pass the jorum."
"Yet I must own I should not mind To be a little richer."
"Labor and wait, and you may find—Hailo! an empty pitcher."
"SCRAPPS."

high standing, aged 83, horse for horse, time, 2:23. The loser surrendered his steed, but, it is sad, used some strong theological words in commenting on the race.

CIVIL SERVICE REFORM.

What Grant Ought to Have Done—and What He Has Done.

[George William Curtis in Harper's Weekly.]

The very able and interesting report of the Examining Board of the Treasury, published in the early spring, states that one of the chief embarrassments which the Board had encountered was public disbelief of the reality and thoroughness of the reform. Is this incredulity surprising?
The President forbids political assessments upon subordinates, and issues an executive order virtually reproving the political offi-ciousness of officers of the service. But, in total contempt of his orders, they levy assessments, desert their posts of duty, assume the management of all party assemblies, and continue to use patronage as a party lever. If these gentlemen were sure that their illicit use of official power was sternly disapproved, they would hardly be so eager to shout for General Butler in Massachusetts, or to manage the convention in New York, or to take the Legislature up the river in Louisiana.
And while these continue, how can the country believe that there is a real reform?
It will judge, and properly, by conspicuous instances and by the general conduct and character of the service. The country can not know whether a night inspector of the New York custom house is or is not appointed—whatever may be asserted—in accordance with the rules; but it can see distinctly whether certain chief offices in New York are bestowed in accordance with the spirit and purpose of the rules, or in obedience to the old system, which the reform professes to supplant. The public can not really know whether the clerks in the St. Louis post office were or were not appointed as the President directs in the rules; but it does know distinctly that the St. Louis postmaster deliberately did what the rules expressly forbade him to do, and that he retains his office. The country can not know how the clerks in the New Orleans custom house are appointed; but it does know that the Collector of New Orleans was guilty of a flagrant offense, and was subsequently renominated for the position.

In the presence of such facts, not isolated, but constantly occurring, it is in vain that examinations are announced for certain minor positions. Rules and examinations are, indeed, indispensable for the proper regulation of a civil service so extensive as ours. But the spirit is more than the letter, and every man who is truly interested in this most vital question will look even more closely at the discretionary action of the President than at the operation of the rules. And this for the reason that the President's will is the spring of the whole movement, and his real disposition upon the subject can be seen more plainly in his discretionary action. We shall all believe that the rules are honestly observed in the minor cases, although we can not watch their operation, if we see that the President in his nominations of the chief collectors, surveyors, postmasters and other officers who are not submitted to technical examinations, regards the essential spirit of reform. If, for instance, he promotes a subordinate who is thoroughly competent and suitable for the superior position the country has conclusive evidence of his sincerity and resolution. But if he disregards the fitness of the subordinate, and appoints over his head an active politician, however good a man and officer he may be, the country justly concludes that other considerations than those of efficient official service have affected the decision.
One such case properly outweighs in the public mind a thousand examinations.
Upon every examination. One such case, if it be conspicuous, not only destroys public faith in the reality of the reform, but demoralizes the service itself, by showing the officers that promotion, which is one of the three cardinal points of the reformed system, will be confined to the most unimportant grades, so that its vital value as an incentive is totally lost.

It is very true that the great and long-accumulating abuses of the old system of the civil service are not to be reformed at once. But it is equally true that nothing is easier than to show at once the spirit and disposition of reform. If, for instance, the President had promptly accepted the resignation of the Collector of New Orleans; if the Postmaster at St. Louis had been removed for the violation of one of the most peremptory of the President's rules, and he had been informed that a "plea of ignorance only increased the offense; if, when it was intimated to the President that his nomination for a Surveyor of the port of New York would not be confirmed, he had said that, having made a nomination in strict conformity with the spirit and purpose of the rules, he should throw upon the Senate the responsibility of rejecting it; if it had not been evident that the chief offices in New York had been filled upon the principle which the spirit of the rules repudiates; and if the public officers everywhere were busy with their public duties, and not with party management and intrigue—there would be a profound and universal conviction that great results had been already achieved, and that a thorough reform was intended.
That the things we mention, and countless others of the same kind, have not been done, and are not doing, is the reason that this reform is the open gibe of the opposition and the secret doubt of its friends in the Republican party. And until these things are done, constantly and consistently done, the work of the commission faithful, able and devoted as we know it to be, will be in vain, and the Republican party will have no right to claim that it has really reformed the civil service.

THE CRISIS.

Meeting of the Business Men.

The undersigned, merchants, manufacturers and business men of Indianapolis, believing that the threatening condition of financial affairs in the country at the present time calls for a remedy which can and ought to be applied without delay by those whose duty it is to furnish a circulating medium of sufficient volume to relieve the present stringency of the money market, propose that a meeting of the merchants, manufacturers and business men be held at the Board of Trade rooms in this city on Saturday evening next (Oct. 25) at 7 o'clock, for the purpose of obtaining united action, based on what may seem to be the general opinion in the premises.

Scene on Columbia Street.

Some weeks ago a colored woman named Simmons left her husband for some real or fancied injury, and the twin have not lived as one flesh to any considerable extent since that time. Yesterday the woman returned and laid claim to a portion of the household goods, and being refused by the husband, mashed up what dishes she could lay hands upon, and was then kicked into the street. It is hardly necessary to remark that she howled over this circumstance, and yelled most vociferously for the police or any other man to come and avenge her wrong; but none came.
After a material space of period, and after a woe and wampus which agitated the entire square, she left and the husband shortly departed for his daily labor. He had barely absented himself before the irate wife again appeared upon the field of gore, followed closely by an express wagon, and finding the coast clear, she made a clear case of wreck in that residence within eight minutes; first carefully loading up the plunder called her own. Bedsteads were chopped to pieces with an axe, more than a ton of furniture was piled up, and the pyramid of destruction was then captured by the fireman's hose, and the things were hurled into the street and pounded to pieces, and the shirts and pants ing resolutions were accepted with a rush: Whereas, The Supreme Court of the State of Indiana has decided the temperance law now on the statute books to be unconstitutional, thereby declaring that the temperance people of this State have a weapon with which to fight intemperance; therefore,

Resolved, That we regard the passage of this law and the decision of the Supreme Court thereon as the first step towards the final destruction of the liquor traffic.

Resolved, That while we feel that the Judges of the Supreme Court have only done their duty, yet we feel proud that our State is honored by such Judges, and we hail the fact that Indiana has such a Legislature and has such Judges, with the Governor who signed the law, as an evidence that the people are being educated to a proper standpoint on the temperance question.

Resolved, That words are powerless to express our gratitude to a Supreme Ruler for giving us the advantages we now have.

Resolved, That we go home from this Grand Lodge determined to secure the thorough enforcement of this law.

THE CHRISTIANS IN SESSION.
Second Day's Proceedings.

The Convention reassembled at 2 o'clock at which time the Chairman announced the following: The Committee on Bible School at Louisville:

Jasper I. Moss, Ohio; L. H. Jameson, Indiana; James Challen, Cincinnati; J. H. Garrison and A. P. Stewart, Kansas. The following were announced as committee on the 25th anniversary: W. T. Moore, Thomas Munnell, I. Errett, J. W. McGarvey and L. L. Carpenter.

An effort was made to so change the constitution which provides that the committee of five shall live near Cincinnati, as to read "Louisville" instead of "Cincinnati," but when put to a vote was lost by a decided majority.

A motion to provide for biennial instead of annual conventions was postponed until next year.

A large audience assembled in the evening to listen to the address of Dr. W. H. Hopson, of Louisville, who chose for his subject, "What Shall we do with Them," applied to freedmen. Elder Errett followed the last speaker in a few well chosen remarks in regard to the mission of the church among the colored people and at the conclusion subscriptions were called for, and between $3,000 to $4,000 were subscribed, in equal installments to extend over five years.

An adjournment was then had until 8 o'clock this morning.

TEMPERANCE.

The Convention of the Grand Lodge I. O. G. T. of Indiana—Proceedings of the Third Day—First Session.

The Grand Lodge convened at 9 A. M. this morning and was called to order by G. W. C. T. Reynolds, and opened in due form. The minutes of yesterday's session were read and approved.

Six additional representatives presented themselves.

The Committee on Mileage submitted a report, which was concurred in.

The Committee on Political Action reported that they did not think the time had come when the Grand Lodge should become the leader of a political party. It was the province of the Good Templars to manufacture temperance sentiment. It is the duty of the friends of temperance to attend nominating conventions and get men of honor and known integrity before the people for office. It was recommended that a central committee be appointed to meet the Central Committees of other parties and secure acceptable nominations, failing in which the committee shall call a State Convention to nominate officers.

The discussion showed that the report was not sufficiently radical.

The hour of ten o'clock having arrived, the special order, the election of officers was taken up. Hon. E. B. Reynolds was unanimously re-elected G. W. C. T. This is Mr. Reynolds's fourth term—a fact unprecedented in the history of the Order.

Mrs. Mary A. Johnson was unanimously elected G. W. C.

For G. W. V. T. on the first ballot there were cast 103 votes, necessary to a choice, 52. Mrs. C. A. P. Smith received 40 votes, Mrs. H. Elliott received 49 votes, and Mrs. Kettie received 14, and there was no choice.

On the second ballot there were 97 votes cast, necessary to a choice, 49. Mrs. Smith received 37 votes, Mrs. Elliott received 60 votes, and was declared elected.

Rev. W. W. Snyder was elected G. W. S. by a nearly unanimous vote.

Sylvester Johnson was unanimously elected G. W. T.

For representative to the R. W. G. L. E. R. Johnson was elected, and the further election was postponed until the afternoon session.

The Committee on the State of the Order find everything in connection with the Order and the cause in a more hopeful condition than ever before. Various recommendations were made, such as have been in some shape before the Grand Lodge for a number of years, and have heretofore been acted on, but are now more earnestly urged than ever before.

The report was adopted.

The Hand Book, by Rev. W. W. Snyder, was declared authority in this jurisdiction. An appropriation of $250 was made to assist in defraying the expenses of the suit before the Supreme Court in which the constitutionality of the Baxter law was called in question.

The Committee on Organ submitted a report recommending various papers, which was adopted.

Adjourned till 1:30 P. M.

RAILWAY COLLISION.

Bee Line and I. & St. L. Passenger Trains Meet at Winston Street.

The passenger trains and engines of the I. & St. L. are stored in the Bee Line round house and yards when off run, and the company have a conductor and a "hostler" whose duty it is to take charge of trains after arrival at the Union Depot, and store them away. James Chambers is the conductor and Frank Taylor engineer in charge of this business, and last evening, shortly after six o'clock, the train was run to the Winston street curve and a stop made to look out for the Bee Line express, then past due, it having the right of way. The express was reported for seven minutes behind schedule, and the switchman therefore gave the I. & St. L. permission to go up, charging them to look out for the other. From Winston street to the yards is quite a distance and around a curve, and the Bee Line train was coming from fifteen or eighteen miles an hour, swung around the other, and the two trains came together with considerable violence, disabling both engines and somewhat injuring Mail Agent Louis Kern, who was in the mail car of the last mentioned. Andy Kelly, engineer of the Bee Line, and also his fireman, escaped uninjured, although they stayed with the engine, and none of the employees were at all injured except the colored porter of the sleeping car, who, in his fright, and after the trouble was over, made a spring for a box car along side, and was bruised by a rough fall upon the ground.

The engines were numbered respectively 41 and 25, the last mentioned belonging to the I. & St. L. Both had the pilots torn off, the bumpers broken, and the Bee Line besides lost a steam chest, the pilot of a cylinder, and Kelly reports that had the track not been so slippery he could have checked his train, and it is also stated that Engineer Taylor did bring his machine to a full stop. The wreck made a blockade of several hours, necessitating a transfer of passengers and baggage, and it also compelled the I. & St. L. to telegraph for a special engine, which was brought over during the night, to take the train out this morning. The No. 25 has been sent back to the shops at Mattoon for repairs.

Juvenile Thieves.

William Burns, John and William Nye, and William Keyes, the juvenile thieves arrested yesterday by Officer Barker, to-day pleaded guilty to stealing cigars and tobacco from Baggerly, and were committed by the Mayor, who took occasion to say that the time for standing between honest men and thieves had played out, and he would commit a thief if he wasn't but a year and a half off.

The mother of Burns was in court, and is trying to have her stripling sent to the House of Refuge.

A Defense Not Good.

Some nights ago the Police raided Kate Smith's, corner Market and New Jersey streets, but found none present save this woman, a girl named White, and Sam. Denin, the last of whom pleaded not guilty to violating the ill fame ordinance. A hearing was had before the Mayor this morning, and it was proven in defense that Denin and Kate Smith were man and wife, having been married several years; but the Mayor held this no justification, for if not a mayor he was an occupant, and accordingly entered a fine.

City Court.

Ed. Moran and Charles Weidit, will have their trial to-morrow.

Addie Mountjoy, T. J. Burnett, William Murray, Carrie Mountjoy, John Murphy and William Williams, were fined for drunkenness, and Sam Denin for occupying house of ill fame. S. T. Burnett was also set upon for carrying a razor.

Green Mason, of West Georgia street, is accused of wife whipping.

How to Live Economically.
The problem of how to economize in living is one that engages the serious attention of a great many people. "Many a little makes a mickle" was one of Benjamin Franklin's "Poor Richard" truisms that summarizes the whole system of popular extravagance. If you wish to save money, economize in little as well as in large items of expenditure. For all the household purposes for which polishing powders, Bath brick and soap are usually used, excepting the one thing of washing clothes, Sapolis is by many times the cheapest article that can be employed. To say nothing about its great superiority to all other substances, it is, on the score of economy alone, by far the cheapest. Remember this fact and save many dollars every year.
